Vancouver, Canada, Nov 10, 2020 --- Advanced Quality Systems announced today that Lou Ann Hinton, a business development executive with extensive experience in healthcare IT and diagnostic radiology, has joined AQS as The National Sales Director and will be responsible for driving AQS commercial sales and expansion into the US.

Lou Ann Hinton joins the AQS team bringing with her 12 years experience in healthcare IT provider marketplace with Change Healthcare, Versus Technology, and Avaya.

“I have provided large healthcare organizations the opportunity to experience the digital transformation with various software applications delivering innovative solutions” said Lou Ann Hinton. “I fully understand the challenges faced by the diagnostic imaging customers and I am eager to provide AQS cloud QC to enterprise radiology departments.

“I welcome Lou Ann to the team and believe the services we have developed at AQS will drive improved standardized TJC and ACR quality compliance and reduce overall management overhead for QC operations” said Miran Aziz, COO of Advanced Quality Systems “while reducing costs and enabling Radiology staff to spend more time filming and providing increased value added care.

Hinton’s addition to the team comes at a time where the company continues to leverage its success in the Canadian market and shifts its focus to expansion in the US. Hinton joins the AQS team as one of a recent growth in executive leadership, strengthening the company’s path towards execution of its US based expansion goals.

About

AQS ILLUMINA drives improved standardized TJC and ACR quality compliance and reduces overall management overhead for QC operations, aids physicists, while reducing costs and enabling Radiology staff to spend more time filming and providing increased value added care.

The system uses sophisticated pattern recognition algorithms and image analysis to quickly analyze the images and calculate all the required values for Vendor, ACR and TJC compliant tests.
